Mindfulness-Based Cognitive Therapy (MBCT) Teacher Training for Improving
Access to Psychological Therapies (IAPT) Services

2018-2019

Sussex Mindfulness Centre Led Bid on behalf of the UK Mindfulness Centres Collaborative

MBCT Teacher Training for IAPT Services in England

Background

Mindfulness-Based Cognitive Therapy (MBCT) is an 8-week group-based programme. The strongest evidence is that MBCT can help keep people well who have a history of depression. Specifically, research trials have shown that MBCT is at least as effective as anti-depressant medication at preventing the risk of relapse for people who are currently well with a history of recurrent depression (Kuyken et al., 2016). This is important because depression is often a recurrent condition, and MBCT can play role in prevent recurrence from happening. Because of this research evidence, since 2004 NICE have recommended MBCT should be available to people who are currently well with a history of three or more episodes of depression. In 2017 Health Education England recognized the importance of this recommendation and commissioned MBCT training for High Intensity therapists working in Improving Access to Psychological Therapy Services. This training course is specifically designed for High Intensity therapists working in IAPT to enable them to offer MBCT groups in their service.

There is currently no means of formal accreditation for MBCT in the UK. However, Good Practice Guidelines (GPG) for teaching MBCT has been published by the UK Network for Mindfulness-based Teacher Training Organisations. This provides a set of standards that are considered nationally to be the minimum required for delivering safe and effective MBCT programmes. This training programme enables graduates to meet the experience and training required by the national GPG and, with experience of running two groups, to apply to join 'the Listing' held by the UK Network of teachers who meet the GPG.

Overview of Training

Trainees will be CBT therapists already working in IAPT with at least one year's post-qualification experience. It is expected that prior to training, trainees will have a personal interest in mindfulness, including personal experience of mindfulness practice. This will include having participated in an MBCT group as a participant and a commitment to ongoing, regular personal mindfulness practice.

The MBCT in IAPT training programme is organized in four units:

Unit 1 (1 day): An overview of the theory underpinning MBCT (including its cognitive science formulation), research, evidence base and ethical framework. This training day will include substantial amounts of didactic teaching in lecture / workshop format.

Unit 2 (8 days): Exploring each of the 8 MBCT sessions in some depth (1 day per session), with a focus on experiential learning through participating in and guiding elements from each of the 8 sessions. The training days will include didactic teaching about the intentions for the session and its place in the curriculum, as well as illustration of the session through a number of methods such as seeing the trainer deliver the programme components, video, case material and role play. Trainees will then have the opportunity to practise teaching particular aspects of the session to their peers with live in situ guidance and formative feedback from trainers ('teach backs').

Unit 3 (1 day): This final training day covers assessment, inclusion criteria, the orientation session and outcome monitoring. This training day will include substantial amounts of didactic teaching in lecture / workshop format.

Unit 4: Supervised MBCT practice through teaching two MBCT groups in trainee's IAPT service, in most cases groups will be co-taught either with another trainee or with an experienced MBCT teacher.

A certificate of competence will be issued to trainees who are assessed as 'competent' on each of the six domains of the MBI-TAC in their second MBCT group.

Unit 1 (Training Day 1) Overview

Unit 1 (1 Day)

The first training day will start with a welcome and introductions, getting to know one another and overviewing the training programme – its aims and overview of the timeline.

The day will then cover the theoretical rationale and scientific underpinnings of MBCT, in particular with regard to cognitive theories of depression and depressive relapse. This will include an overview of:

- The research evidence showing that MBCT is effective at reducing the risk of relapse for people with a history of recurrent depression who are currently well
- The mechanisms through which MBCT is proposed to work – i.e. looking at why MBCT protects against depressive relapse
- The research evidence on how to teach MBCT effectively and safely

This training day will comprise a mix of teaching methods including didactic teaching, small-group work to critically engage with the research evidence and its applicability in IAPT and to hear from people with lived experience of depression about their own experiences of MBCT.

Outline of the Day

- Welcome and introductions
- Overview of the MBCT in IAPT training programme, its aims and timelines
- Overview of the MBCT programme
- Overview of research evidence regarding the effectiveness of MBCT in preventing depressive relapse
- Lived experiences of depression and MBCT
- Why does MBCT prevent depressive relapse? An exploration and discussion of mechanisms of action
- Teaching MBCT safely
- End

Unit 2 (Training Days 2 – 9) Overview

Unit 2 overall learning outcome: Training over 4 x 2 days to develop the skills, attitudes and knowledge required to begin to teach MBCT with supervision.

So as to underscore the importance of the experiential learning approach of MBCT the days are structured to progress from a 'direct experience' of each of the weekly sessions of MBCT, as a participant, to explorations of the underpinning theory and rationales for each curriculum item. This is followed by information about and explorations of the practical (pedagogic) considerations. Thus, you first experience for example, the main elements of Session 1 and then subsequently explore the theoretical underpinnings and then practical teaching considerations and rationale for the Raisin Exercise and the Body Scan Meditation.

Each training day in Unit 2 then proceeds to explore the skill of guiding (teaching) the main aspects of the Session including the practical and safety considerations involved. Finally, you engage in Teaching Practice of these elements in groups of 3 or 4. The 'inquiry' aspect of the MBCT curriculum becomes progressively more significant (in terms of time allocation to it and 'assessment') as the unit 2 training days proceed.

The terminology of the 6 Domains of the Mindfulness-based Interventions Teaching Assessment Criteria (MBI-TAC)* (abbreviated to D1, D2, D3 etc) are used throughout this document and linked to Learning Outcomes (LO).

*Domain 1: Organisation of the Session/curriculum (D1)

Domain 2: Relational Stance (D2)

Domain 3: Embodiment (D3)

Domain 4: Guiding Practices (D4)

Domain 5: Inquiry, communication programme themes through interactive dialogue (D5)

Domain 6: Group Process (D6)

Days 2-3

Overview: Day 1 acts to orientate new teachers to the important pedagogic underpinnings of the MBCT approach, exploring: i/ what Mindfulness is in terms of its contemporary and historical foundations, ii/ an overview of the Mechanisms of Mindfulness iii/ the importance of experiential learning in this approach and how this is facilitated in the MBCT approach and iv/ the importance of personal practice ('embodiment') in teaching (drawing on research evidence) and with reference to Shapiro's axiomatic model explore the importance of the implicit curriculum in terms of the 7 Attitudinal Foundations (Jon Kabat-Zinn).

So as to underscore the importance of the content of the first two days, the approach taken is to move from a 'direct experience' (as a participant) to explorations of underpinning theory and practical pedagogic considerations. Thus, you first experience for example, the main elements of Session 1 and then subsequently explore its theoretical underpinnings and then practical teaching considerations and rationales.

Unit 3 (Training Day 10) Overview

Unit 3 (Day 10)

The final training day will focus on methods of assessment for MBCT, covering inclusion and exclusion criteria and outcome monitoring. This will focus on assessing for and monitoring MBCT outcomes in line with NICE guidelines, namely, assessing for a history of depression, assessing for readiness and motivation, assessing for safety/risk concerns (and how where relevant to respond to these), and methods of monitoring outcomes and evaluation (including completion of the IAPT minimum data-set at 12-months following the end of the MBCT group).

This training day will comprise a mix of teaching methods including didactic teaching, small-group work to consider key assessment criteria for MBCT in IAPT and to hear from people with lived experience of depression about their own views on motivation and safety.

Outline of the Day

- Welcome
- Revisiting NICE guidelines for MBCT and the research evidence for relapse prevention
- Assessment for depression and recurrent depression
- Assessment for readiness and motivation, with contribution from lived experience trainers
- Assessment for safety/risk concerns, with contribution from lived experience trainers
- Outcome monitoring in IAPT and evaluating our own practice
- Getting ready for Unit 4
- End

Unit 4 (Supervised MBCT Groups) Overview

In this unit, you will begin to teach MBCT in your own workplace as an apprentice with close supervision from an experienced MBCT Teacher or together with a peer. You will facilitate two MBCT programmes with 4 hours of MBCT Supervision for each programme, with an MBCT Mindfulness Based Supervisor, provided by the training organisation unless one is available in your service.

You need to attend a Mindfulness Practice Retreat at this time for a minimum of 5 days to be arranged independently at recommended venues in your own time.

Formal Assessment takes place of the recorded second MBCT group. This involves submitting video recordings of a whole 8 week MBCT programme, which is assessed for competency using the Mindfulness-based Interventions- Treatment Assessment Criteria (MBI:TAC).
